

BECOME A TRAINED FACILITATOR IN THE LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® METHOD & MATERIALS

FOUNDATIONAL CERTIFICATION

Inthrface's facilitator training in the LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® methodology is the only training in the world that is endorsed by Professor Johan S. Roos, co-inventor of the methodology! The Foundational Certification specifically is not only endorsed by him but also co-developed with him.

WHAT OUR PREVIOUS PARTICIPANTS SAY

“I recently had the pleasure of attending Intrface’s LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® facilitator training. I was blown away by the training, the facilitator’s knowledge, and just how versatile this tool can be.

Don’t be fooled into thinking this is simply a fun icebreaker technique. You’ll uncover real-time insights into your strategy, your organization, and even your own personal identity. I highly recommend it!”

WHAT IS THE LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® METHOD?

When we use our hands in a creative process, we express our thoughts and ideas in a more detailed and nuanced way. This means they are easier to understand and remember – leading to more effective dialogues and better results.

The LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® method is a scientifically developed and thoroughly tested creative tool for strategy, team, personal and organisational development. The method was developed by the LEGO® Company in cooperation with leading strategy and organisational development professors from IMD in Switzerland.

THE CORE OF THE LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® METHOD:

The key drivers of the method are play, flow and imagination, creating a safe, multisensory and multidimensional working environment. The method is based on extensive research from different areas of research. The theoretical core areas are:

- Constructivism (Piaget; 1951).
- Constructionism (Charel and Papert; 1991).
- Complex Adaptive Systems' theory (Holland; 1995).
- Autopoietic Organizational Epistemology (Von Krogh and Roos; 1994, 1995, Weick; 2000).
- Flow (Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi; 1993).

WHY DOES LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® WORK?

- ① LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® uses the diversity of the LEGO® brick. The LEGO® bricks act as three-dimensional models of complex challenges within academia, organizations, etc. and they can be both individual and collective.
- ② The use of constructions and narratives increase mutual understanding of the issues. Embodying these in physical models make challenges and opportunities visible and helps you to play out realistic scenarios, test different possibilities and identify valuable solutions that can be implemented immediately.
- ③ The process also effectively promotes knowledge sharing, involvement and inspiration - which strengthens your ability to tackle new challenges together!

From hands to hearts to minds, brick by brick.
